

About Joycelyn Lewis

I am passionate about discipling others, I find joy in walking alongside individuals on their spiritual journey, offering guidance, support, and encouragement. With a heart for nurturing spiritual growth, I am dedicated to fostering deep connections, providing discipleship and mentorship, and creating a safe space for individuals to explore and strengthen their faith. Through intentional discipleship, I aim to empower women to deepen their relationship with God, grow their understanding of the Bible, and live out their faith authentically in their daily lives. My commitment to disciplining others stems from a desire to see individuals flourish spiritually and experience the transformative power of a life rooted in faith.

I have been married to the love of my life for thirty-four years; we have two grown children, a son and a daughter, and most recently, we have added a beautiful daughter-in-law to our family. My husband and I are raising our two grandchildren, a boy, and a girl, and we are discovering daily how incredibly blessed we are to have the privilege of pouring into their lives.

When I am not blogging, podcasting, equipping, and encouraging others, you can find me reading a book, playing with my grandchildren, trying out a new recipe, spending time with my hubby, taking a nap, or chatting with my close friends.

I am grateful to be an ordained Minister through Christian Global Outreach Ministries. I am a Spiritual Director, Executive Coach, Personal Life & Leadership Coach, Speaker, Teacher Retreat Creator and Facilitator.

B.S. Communication Disorders

M.A. Christian Leadership

M.A. Spiritual Formation

Certified in Formative Spirituality

Certified Executive Coach- CAPP Institute

Personal Life Coach

Former Executive Director of a Non-Profit

Former Minister of Discipleship & Missions